A Note From the Editor

I'll admit it—I love winter, and I love snow! But I do not like being cold, so staying inside all cozy and warm, sipping tea and watching the snow fall is one of my favorite ways to enjoy winter.

As you can imagine, since I love the winter season, I also enjoy crocheting cold-weather accessories, clothing and throws. So it was extra fun to put together this collection of "all things cozy."

In our All Wrapped Up chapter you'll find a large variety of patterns for scarves, cowls and shawls to add a touch of warmth to your favorite outfits. Textures, beautiful colors and fun stitches will make it hard to decide which one to make first!

The Toasty Head to Toe chapter is all about keeping your extremities warm in style! Slouchy hats, beanies, headbands, fingerless mitts, slipper socks and more offer a wide selection of projects for you and your family. And as a bonus, all are perfect for holiday gift-giving.

In the Winter Wearables chapter we feature cozy sweaters for all ages. You'll find gorgeous sweaters for yourself that are deceptively simple to make with stylish results. We've also included a classic man's vest and sweaters for the kids, and even one for your favorite pooch rounds out this chapter.

And finally, in the Cozy at Home chapter you'll find several beautiful afghans and throws to suit every decorating style. Choose from a simple and quick-to-make throw crocheted in super bulky yarn accented with fur trim, a beautiful Celtic-inspired cabled throw, or one of the other designs that are sure to increase the cozy factor at your house.

Grab your crochet hook and snuggle up! We're sure you'll find enough projects to keep you cozy and warm all winter long!

Happy Crocheting!

Sweater is worked from bottom hem to armholes, where it is divided and each section is worked separately.

Sweater begins by making two rectangles in Wattle Stitch. Then 4 sections of Ribbing are made and joined as you go to the Wattle Stitch rectangles. Pieces are held together with stitch markers while working first round of Wattle Stitch at the waist of Sweater. Work continues in rounds to armholes. From there, work progresses in rows to neckline. Additional sections of Ribbing are made and joined as you go to the top edge of Sweater Body. Sleeves are made separately, working in rounds to Sleeve Cap.

To change colors, locate the stitch or chain space where the first single crochet of the row/round should be placed, slip stitch in that stitch or chain space, chain 1 and begin with the first single crochet, then continue the row/round as usual.

Customizing the Fit

The dimensions listed here are based on the low end of standard dog sweater sizes, but dogs come in so many shapes that it is best to take a few measurements and adjust the number of rows and/or stitches to ensure the best fit. The sweater should be comfortably snug, not tight, and if too loose it may shift as your dog moves. To get the desired fit, measure your dog in four places. (Bear in mind that the finishing trim on the body piece will add about ½ inch on all sides.)

Bib

Determining the length of the bib, which extends from the body piece, is an important measurement to assure the best fit: too short and it may distort or pull the cowl down; too long and it will buckle. Beginning about 1 inch behind its front legs, measure from your dog's chest up between the legs to the base of its throat, which is where the bib will button to the cowl.

To customize, simply adjust the number of rows in the pattern to meet the desired length.

Girth

Find your dog's girth—which is primarily determined by the expansion of its ribcage—by measuring around the widest part of the chest (usually a few inches behind the front legs).

Modify the width of the body piece as part of the increase in row 5 of the pattern instructions. To increase or decrease, adjust by 3 chains per inch. When working the lower left hip section, make sure it is symmetrical with the right hip.

To customize if the sweater is less than 1 inch too loose, simply move the buttons in, away from the edge to create an overlapping closure. Adjust the placement of the shoulder buttons accordingly.

To customize if it's just a bit snug, crochet another round of trim, working the buttonholes in the final round.

Length

For this design, measure your dog's back from the base of its neck to about 2 inches before the base of its tail. Work the body rows to reach this length before beginning the bib.

To increase or decrease the length, adjust by 2 rows per inch.

Be sure when lengthening the pattern that the fabric does not obstruct the groin and wraps around your dog's belly at least 3 inches away from its genitals—the finished sweater for a female dog can cover farther back on her underside than one for a male.

Cowl

Width: Measure the circumference of your dog's neck at the thickest point (or use its collar size) and crochet the cowl to that width. To alter the pattern's given measurements: Add or subtract by 3 ribs for every inch you would like to increase or decrease. Because the cowl is ribbed, it stretches and can easily be placed over your dog's head, yet should maintain a comfortably snug fit around the neck.

Length: To determine the cowl's length, measure your dog's neck from the base of its throat to just under its jawline and merely adjust the number of beginning chains. Increase or decrease by 5 single crochet to add or subtract 1 inch in length.
